

RV works set to start

RHYLEA MILLAR
rhylea.millar@news-mail.com.au

A LOCAL construction business have been assigned a multi-million dollar contract for the initial stage of an RV lifestyle village.

Development Construction (Devcon) were appointed to undertake the civil works of RV Oceanside at Burnett Heads.

RV Oceanside will feature a community village for residents aged over 50.

The first stage will include major upgrades to the Burnett Heads Rd and Schleger St intersection, and construction of a large part of the facilities plus 79 homes.

Devcon managing director Andrew Santalucia said the exciting project would be a positive contribution to the Bundaberg community in many ways.

"It's good to see private investment in the community and it's going to be great for the area of Burnett Heads," he said.

"We don't really have an RV lifestyle village or any-

RV OCEANSIDE: DEVCON managing director Andrew Santalucia said the exciting project will bring jobs to Bundaberg.

thing like it so it's something new and really exciting for the area and people to invest in.

RV Lifestyle Village Oceanside CEO Phillip Stewart said selecting Devcon recognised the quality of work that the business produces, and its ability to compete with larger, south-east Queensland-based contractors.

"We are delighted to be able to appoint Devcon to undertake these works as it reconfirms our commitment to support local businesses whenever possible," he said.

"Major construction work of our community facilities will start by the end of the year and our display village and first residents' homes are planned for construction in early 2020."

The development apincludes 487 homes and expansive gardens, pathways, a lagoon style pool, gym, art studio, lawns bowls, games rooms with ten pin bowling lanes and golf simulators.

Construction is expected to start this month and take about 26 weeks.